Atlanta native, Piper Espey, grew up surrounded by all things metal. As a daughter of a highly skilled metalsmith, she learned from an early age the MAGIC of moving metal. Her chosen focus for undergraduate and graduate studies were Art and Psychology. She spent many years working with special needs children and witnessed the healing power of art. Today, she is a full time metalsmith and jewelry designer working out of her Atlanta studio.

Having spent the majority of her life with the Chattahoochee River in her backyard, the river and all it has to offer has had a heavy influence on her creations. With a background in painting and drawing, she creates with metal, a similar flow. Her art is heavily influenced by Georgia O'Keeffe, the American Southwest and all of creation with nature's vast shapes, forms, power and hues... keeping her fully charged as an artist. In her work she incorporates various elements of nature that she hand casts into metal. Twigs, leaves, shell, bone and even the movement of water! All of her ethically sourced stones are hand picked and hand cut. Sourcing materials responsibly is very important part of the process. Her one of kind, talisman jewelry is created for those who want to adorn themselves with organic boldness, and the power of nature.
